P R O C E E D I N G S

THE COURT: Counsel, is everybody on the line?
This is Judge McCafferty.

Let me begin. Can everybody hear me? Okay.
All right, we have a court reporter who is here and I am going to identify the case and docket number by name.

In Re Atrium Medical Corp. C-Qur Mesh Products
Liability Litigation, MDL 16-md-02753-LM. And only lead counsel will participate, lead counsel or members of the plaintiffs' team will participate in the call.

I'd like you to please identify yourself.
Although I'm quite familiar with voices at this point, the stenographer may not be, so if you could just identify yourself quickly by last name before you begin speaking. And please do not put this call on hold at any point. If you need to do anything at your desk, just put the call on mute as opposed to putting it on hold.

Okay, I don't want to hide the fact from you that even though we have this great technology and it seems as though I may be in the courthouse, I'm actually calling remotely in as you are, because I'm completely snowed in in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. So, let me describe what we're going to do today.

This is an informal discovery process, as

1 counsel knows, and what will happen is we'll go through 2 the joint agenda which has laid out certain discovery
3 disputes, and we'll go through them in a specific order.
4 I think what I'd like to do is sort of knock out some of 5 the easier more straightforward issues first and then 6 move on to some of the more thorny complex disputes.
7 And as we did this, and we've done this all along, I 8 will give the losing party with respect to these 9 disputes a deadline, I'm going to give you a deadline of 10 Monday, March 12th of next week to decide if you want to 11 pursue formal litigation. Our hope obviously is that we 12 can do this informally and move the case along. But if 13 you decide you need and want to formally litigate the 14 question, then just notify the Court before the close of 15 business on Monday March 12th. And if for some reason 16 you need some extension of that, obviously ask for that.
17 But I'm thinking you could probably make a decision by 18 Monday of next week.

19 Okay, so, No. 5 on the agenda is obviously 20 just notifying the Court that the parties are in favor 21 still of establishing bellwether guidelines and pretrial
22 and trial dates for those cases and you continue to work 23 together in that effort. That is excellent. So I am 24 checking No. 5 off, and that will be the easiest one of 25 the day.

1 Now let's go to No. 2, the deposition dates
2 for two 30(b)(6) depositions. So, does anybody want to 3 be heard beyond what I have in front of me in the 4 agenda?

5 MR. ORENT: Your Honor --

6 MS. AYTCH: Yeah -- I'm sorry, Jonathan, I
7 will defer to you.

8 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, we've on a number of 9 these items continued to have discussions with 10 defendants, and just to provide a little bit of 11 background here, it has been plaintiffs' concern all 12 along that we not have the month of April become a dead 13 month where we're not beginning to start and take 14 depositions. We, as the Court is well aware, first 15 noticed these depositions back in December, I think on 16 or about December 10th, although we indicated back in 17 October we were going to seek these depositions.

18 That being said, and there is a large degree 19 of frustration on plaintiffs' side where we're not 20 getting -- where we did not get dates even though there 21 were issues, logistical issues we still needed to work
22 out in the intervening months, and so I would raise as a 23 sort of separate aside request from the substance of 24 this particular dispute, we would like the Court to 25 guide the parties and provide what I think would be a

1 fair and reasonable rule which would be that within a 2 week of getting a request for deposition underneath the 3 Court's practice and procedure order, that the opposing 4 party provide dates. We can deal with the substance, 5 and if there is any meet and conferring that needs to be 6 done I think that the parties have shown that we're able 7 to bridge the gap on a large number of those issues.
8 But what I am concerned about, this is a global 10,000
9 foot item, is the fact that we're now six months past 10 our time where we initially indicated that we wanted 11 depositions, and we're not able to do those depositions 12 in the time prior to April 15th that the Court had -- or 13 April 16th that the Court had set for jurisdictional 14 discovery.

15 So that's my general background to this. And 16 and now specifically what I do want to say is that 17 defendants came to the plaintiffs and advised us that 18 Mr. Mayer was going to be their 30(b)(6) deponent and 19 that he would not be available in the month of April 20 prior to the 16th, that he would be available and would 21 in fact be in the United States on the 18th and 19th of 22 May, approximately a month after the deadline.
23 Defendants asked plaintiffs whether or not we would take 24 the deposition in or on those dates, and we initially 25 declined to do so fearing that we would lose the month

1 of April to conduct discovery, and subsequently we 2 talked to the defendants and have reached an agreement 3 in principal, that is that the defendants, recognizing 4 our concern, are willing to provide either additional 5 dates in April or May where the depositions could be 6 conducted, and they have offered April 25 and 26 in 7 Amsterdam, or provide a different 30(b) witness in the 8 month of April for one of the non-jurisdictional issues 9 that we've been asking for dates on. And I think as far 10 as the substance of getting those depositions at this 11 point, we've moved the ball far enough along that I 12 think defense counsel and I can continue to work and 13 we'll ultimately be able to reach an accommodation of 14 the scheduling of these. But, so I think that's 15 relieved the need for immediate court intervention, but 16 I do think that where we are going to be seeking a large 17 number of depositions in the weeks and months to come, 18 we do need a default rule. And so that was an item that 19 we put into our agenda and would like the Court's 20 guidance on that piece. But with regard to the actual 21 depositions, we recognize the scheduling issues and are 22 going to try and work past that.

23 THE COURT: Okay. So just to be clear, then, 24 you're taking Nos. 2 and 3 off the table and you want 25 instead just a sort of global order that within one week

1 of notice the other side provides dates and then you 2 work through schedules.

3 MR. ORENT: That's correct, your Honor. I 4 think we've reached enough progress to this point where 5 I do have a feeling that we'll be able to reach an 6 accommodation, and if we, obviously if we don't we could 7 always come back to the Court, but I think at this point 8 we are far enough along that we're going to be able to 9 move that ball and resolve the immediate issue. But as 10 I said, given the pendency of these notices and the 11 number of issues, I do think that we do need a general 12 rule that goes along with the deposition protocol, that 13 is we get dates within a week or so. I think that just 14 getting us the dates will facilitate the process and 15 would move the meet and confer process along quicker and 16 allow us to move the litigation in whole quicker.

17 THE COURT: Okay. So two and three are off
18 the table. And let me ask Attorney Aytch how you feel 19 about the global rule within one week of notice the 20 other side provides dates and then you work out the 21 schedule.

22 MS. AYTCH: We did not agree with that global 23 rule although after I mention a couple things I am 24 willing to make an offer on that point. I think the 25 context of what's been going on with the discovery needs

1 to be described a bit more.

2 So, when we received the notices on or about 3 December 10th, although Mr. Orent is correct that 4 initially back in October we were aware of it, the Court 5 then issued a ruling in November that told the 6 plaintiffs not to reserve that discovery. Maybe by 7 error or something else, the December 10th notices were 8 exactly that discovery. So we had to painstakingly go 9 through line-by-line all 13 topics and 63 subtopics to 10 formulate objections in order to meet and confer.
11 Numerous times in writing and verbally we had mentioned 12 to plaintiffs' executive committee that we objected to 13 the scope of the notices, and until we can agree on the 14 scope we were unable to provide dates because we didn't 15 know who or even how many people we would have to put up 16 for those depositions.

17 I do want to credit the plaintiffs for being 18 so very courteous to me while I was out with my surgery.
19 That did delay meet and confer that we were going to 20 have earlier in February and pushed it until the week 21 that I got back into the office. However, it is not 22 just that the defendants aren't wanting to give dates.
23 We actually need contacts around the deposition notices 24 in order to do that.

25 So we're perfectly willing to within two weeks

1 of finalizing what, you know, what the deposition topics 2 are going to be either through a successful meet and 3 confer or through guidance from the Court to give those 4 dates, but to give a date within one week of a severely 5 broad deposition notice we don't believe is merited.

6 THE COURT: Okay, how many weeks were you
7 willing did you say?

8 MS. AYTCH: Within two weeks.

9 THE COURT: Within two weeks. So you're 10 proposing two weeks to work out scope and dates?

11 MS. AYTCH: I'm proposing to provide dates
12 within two weeks of working out scope. Hopefully it 13 doesn't tend to take that long to work out scope, but 14 without having the scope nailed down it's really 15 difficult to provide dates.

16 THE COURT: How would that global rule be 17 worded to your satisfaction, Attorney Aytch?

18 MS. AYTCH: I apologize, your Honor, for 19 stammering a little bit.

20 THE COURT: That's okay.

21 MS. AYTCH: With something along the lines, 22 within two weeks of finalized scope of deposition topics 23 either by a successful meet and confer or guidance or 24 order of the Court, the opposing party shall provide 25 dates of the deponent or deponents.

1 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Attorney Orent.

2 MR. ORENT: Well, your Honor, I disagree with 3 -- two weeks, let me start off by saying two weeks is a 4 proposition, I don't know that that's certainly not 5 ideal but it's not undoable. What is concerning, 6 though, is the caveat that it be not after giving them
7 notice of deposition but after agreement or resolution 8 as to the scope. And my concern actually stems from 9 this round of meet and confer and from this process, and 10 I have quite a different view of what's transpired over 11 the last four months or so than the defendants, and my 12 primary concern is is that up until we received the 13 defendants' February letter, we had actually never 14 received written objections to our notice of deposition 15 and the issues were not formally raised with us for 16 several months and we had asked for dates and -- but 17 that unnecessarily delays this process. We can, 18 typically speaking, there's no reason that we need more 19 than 30 days to work out a scope of a deposition and 20 there's quite frankly no reason that on an individual 21 notice of deposition where it's a fact witness there 22 needs to be any discussion as to scope whatsoever.

23 So going back in time we've noticed these two 24 depositions where we actually negotiated an agreed upon 25 scope back in, I want to say it was

1 November/December-ish, maybe as far as January, but 2 still have not received dates on those, and we're 3 looking in the May timeframe, and we were never offered 4 dates or given any solidification for those where we 5 actually had met and conferred and reached agreement on 6 the scope.

7 Then you get to how quickly the defendant
8 responds to us in terms of scope and how quickly we can 9 work together and meet and confer, and sometimes that 10 adds unnecessary amounts of time, especially if there's 11 no imminent deposition coming up where we have to 12 resolve it by.

13 So, what I think the better rule would be 14 would be for the defendants to give us a date or dates 15 within a week or two. And if at that same time we can 16 set the deposition 30 days out or more, you know, you 17 know, if we're doing a large number of scheduling of 18 depositions and we can work on the scope within that 19 time period, really there's no reason that we should 20 hold up each and every deposition notice every time I 21 send an intention to take a deposition to have to meet 22 and confer on whether or not we can take that deposition 23 and the scope of that individual's deposition. The vast 24 majority of these going forward are going to be fact 25 witnesses. And for example, Reinhard Mayer, the author

1 of the declaration that was attached as Exhibit B to the 2 defendants' motion previously on jurisdiction, we saw 3 him as a fact witness and still have not received its 4 fact witness dates. So, I understand he's also going to 5 be the 30(b) witness, but those are two different 6 issues.

7 So I think that the better rule would be is to 8 allow us to schedule deposition. That will put some 9 pressure on the parties to meet and confer quickly, 10 resolve any issues quickly, and move forward as 11 efficiently as possible. And quite frankly, as we're 12 going to be moving forward with a large number of 13 depositions beginning this spring and into the summer
14 and fall, we need to get dates and be able to move 15 quickly on scheduling because dates are going to fill up 16 pretty quickly, and I think the only way to do that 17 efficiently is to place the onus on the parties to be 18 able to do it. We can still take issues to the Court if 19 they're unresolved between the parties, but I think 20 history has shown we're able to work out 99 percent of 21 the issues between the parties.

22 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Well, anybody
23 want to say anything else? All right, it seems to me 24 that a simple rule that would require parties to provide 25 dates within one week of a notice if there are no

1 disputes regarding scope, that seems like a fair rule to 2 me. And then secondly, if there are disputes regarding 3 scope, you provide the dates within three weeks of the 4 notice. That gives you time to narrow the scope, define 5 the scope, meet and confer, but you have an outside date 6 by which you have to begin scheduling them. And then 7 this would be a global rule and a global understanding, 8 and my guess is that to the extent there were any 9 extensions necessary you would just meet and confer and 10 agree on those. But I think that is a fair compromise 11 and it's a little simpler than I think what you were 12 proposing, Attorney Orent.

13 Does that make sense to everybody?

14 MS. AYTCH: Yes, your Honor.

15 MR. ORENT: Yes, your Honor.

16 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So, that 17 actually was not frankly a numbered item on the agenda, 18 but because you both worked out Nos. 2 and 3, you get 19 some credit for that.

20 So, now let's go to the jurisdictional 21 discovery dispute, No. 1, of which there are several.
22 And what I'd like to do is to start, let's start with 23 the first one which is No. 16 in the agenda. It's 1a, 24 but it's Request for Production No. 16, and -- okay.

25 On this one, let me give everybody a minute or

1 two just to study this and get your head into this 2 particular item, and that includes myself, so let's just 3 take a moment and review No. 16 and what we're talking 4 about.

5 (Pause.)

6 THE COURT: Okay. Agenda item 1a, Request for 7 Production No. 16, is a request for each and every 8 summary plan description and annual report or any other 9 form of summary documentation however denominated for 10 every employee benefit plan, retirement plan, pension 11 plan or profit-sharing for employees of Atrium Medical 12 Corp. for each of the years 2011 to the present. Okay, 13 and it looks as though defendants basically have two 14 objections. One has to do with my prior court order, 15 and defendants are arguing that I have already held that 16 this is too broad a discovery request. And the second 17 argument seems to be a practical one that the requested 18 documentation will not provide plaintiffs with what it 19 is they're trying to discover which defendants 20 characterize as the payor for the employee benefit plan.
21 Plaintiffs are seeking this discovery and argue that 22 it's relevant to the alter ego analysis. And it's a
23 similar argument, frankly, for Request for Production 35 24 and 36. Let's deal with 16 first and then we'll move to 25 35 and 36 because they are so closely related.

1 So, I'll go ahead and just start with Attorney
2 Orent. I will say that I obviously have read through 3 this and prepared for this conference and I would just 4 note for everybody's benefit that as I see it my order 5 was directed at the original discovery request which 6 sought health insurance plans for employees of every 7 subsidiary or affiliate of Getinge, not just Atrium.
8 And that Atrium -- plaintiffs have significantly 9 narrowed their request at this point.

10 So I don't see my order as dispositive on this 11 question as much as defense counsel argued that in the 12 letter, so I think focusing on some of the more 13 practical issues, relevance, et cetera, would be more on 14 point.

15 So let me hear, Attorney Orent, do you have 16 anything to add to your letter?

17 MR. ORENT: Because our letter dealt just 18 globally with the issues, your Honor, I just want to 19 point out a couple of items.

20 We think that this goes to, if you're looking 21 at the Bennett versus GAF Corp's eight-point criteria, 22 nine-point criteria, we think it goes certainly to a 23 number of these failure of corporations to deal with 24 each other arm's length, also payment of the debts, 25 salaries and other expenses by the parent company as

1 well as domination of the subsidiary's daily operations 2 and policies. So we think it goes to at least three, 3 perhaps more, on the factors generally speaking.

4 Now, in their papers defendants suggest that 5 the documents won't have the information, however we 6 don't know that that's the case, particularly in light 7 of the fact that the defendants hinge everything on 8 Reinhard Mayer's declaration.

9 Your Honor, at this point, though, before I 10 get more specific I would like to, for the record, make 11 note of paragraph 13 of the stipulated or I guess case 12 management order 3E, the protective order, which is the 13 use of confidential documents or information at a 14 hearing or trial, and it says that we shall -- the 15 parties intending to use a document should alert the 16 Court and the other parties of that. I had by email 17 indicated that I was reserving the right to use the 18 merger document itself at this hearing, and I'm now as, 19 part of this argument, would like to make specific 20 reference to the terms and conditions of the merger 21 itself dated October 2nd, 2011. We don't believe that 22 there's anything that is truly confidential anymore in a 23 six-year-old merger document, but nonetheless we have 24 not yet gone through the formal challenge process and so 25 under paragraph 13 I'm advising that I think it is

1 relevant and would seek to discuss how exactly the Court
2 would like me to approach references to the merger 3 documents throughout the rest of the items that we're 4 going to cover today, because I do believe that they go 5 directly to the heart of the issues that we're 6 discussing.

7 THE COURT: Let me ask if we can obviate the 8 issue by getting Attorney Aytch's permission to simply 9 lift any protection from that document. Is that 10 something you'd be prepared to do, Attorney Aytch?

11 MS. AYTCH: No, your Honor, we do believe that 12 that document is confidential. We're fine with a 13 request to speak freely and, you know, have it redacted, 14 but we do -- we would not concede it is no longer 15 confidential.

16 THE COURT: All right. Okay. That was worth
17 a try. Let me do this, then. If you would, Attorney 18 Orent, if you would simply tell me now what is in that 19 document, why it's relevant, and then from here out all 20 you have to do is refer to it as the merger document.
21 And if you could -- that way when we redact this 22 transcript it will be limited redactions and you'll 23 obviously look it over and it will be easier for our 24 court reporters because it will be, you know, just a 25 limited section of the transcript if you understand what

1 I'm saying.

2 MR. ORENT: I do indeed, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Okay.

4 MR. ORENT: And thank you very much.

5 THE COURT: Let's do this. Go ahead and 6 discuss the merger document and I'll have to resolve 7 ultimately the issue of whether or not this is under 8 seal at some point, but right now to resolve this 9 discovery dispute we'll presume its confidentiality, and 10 so if you could summarize your arguments with respect to 11 this document, and be specific with respect to any of 12 the confidential language, then I'm going to give 13 Attorney Aytch time to refute those arguments with 14 respect to the documents, and then that portion, I would 15 envision that portion, those pages, that short small 16 portion would be redacted, and then any reference 17 counsel makes to the merger document you can simply 18 refer to it as the merger document. And Attorney Aytch, 19 you may not need to necessarily refute specifics and 20 reveal specifics in the merger document. If that's the 21 case we can just move on and you can reference his 22 arguments, but I'll let you respond as you see fit.

23 So Attorney Orent, why don't you summarize the 24 merger document for me now, and then I'll give Attorney 25 Aytch an opportunity on that same limited topic to

1 respond, and then we'll move on to Request for 2 Production No. 16.

3 MR. ORENT: Thank you very much, your Honor.
4 So, beginning on page 43 of the merger document itself,
5 the document specifies that [REDACTED]

We believe that each of these items goes directly to an issue relative to the specific discovery request.

THE COURT: Okay. [REDACTED]

THE COURT: Okay. So I think you could just reference the subparts in the future as you're discussing the document without being too specific.

Okay, Attorney Aytch.

MS. AYTCH: Yes, your Honor. I'll just reference the merger agreement sections.

Well, first of all, this section and including the subsection of this particular paragraph does not discuss disregarding corporate formalities but instead is just clarifying that it is not intended to make Atrium's existing employees third party beneficiaries of

1 the agreement between Atrium and Getinge AB when you
2 read it in context. And we're happy to provide a copy
3 of course to the Court for in camera review. So, this 4 evidence of getting AB's dominion given the entire 5 context is pretty specious.

6 Additionally this is a typical merger term in 7 acquisition to allow some of the same benefits to the 8 top current employees so that there's not a mass exodus.
9 As noted by many of these sections [REDACTED] 10 [REDACTED] it is not showing that it is still exercising 11 any kind of dominion or control. So they're relying on 12 a term negotiated in an arm's length contract with 13 lawyers on both sides concerning the treatment of 14 Atrium's employees after the merger to show domination, 15 but it actually only shows that these two parties were 16 dealing with each other at arm's length in an arm's 17 length agreement which Atrium sought out as a benefit to 18 keep the employees from doing a mass exodus.

19 So we still do not believe that this would 20 harm any merger agreement, would have any, get them to 21 try -- to get them to having a probative value with 22 regard to all of the employment benefit plans that are 23 currently in existence, especially when we are providing 24 a 30(b)(6) deponent that can speak to the payees of 25 this, of any plans that are being offered in addition to

1 -- any plans currently being offered, rather, in 2 addition to providing certain of Atrium's employment 3 handbooks.

4 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, if I might just 5 clarify a couple points. One is we're not saying that 6 this is totally dispositive of the issue. The discovery 7 standard is a different standard than whether something 8 is on its face dispositive. We believe at the outset, 9 whatever the reading, that this is sufficient to raise 10 questions to allow us to continue discovery process, and 11 that's what this is, this is a discovery dispute at this 12 point. And so probative value is an evidentiary term 13 typically reserved for admission and admissibility of 14 evidence, it's not the discoverability standard. And we 15 think regardless that these terms of the merger document 16 raise the issue and the severity of the issue to warrant
17 discovery.

18 The second point is that a number of the terms 19 that I've cited, paragraph B, for example, or I also 20 believe paragraph D are specifically -- paragraph E
21 doesn't limit time. [REDACTED]

1 So I do think that there will be some argument
2 at a future point when this becomes a dispositive motion 3 as to whether what the true meaning of the language is 4 and what the context of the document is, but I think 5 that for purposes of discovery that we have -- that I 6 will make in my arguments going forward that they're 7 sufficient to warrant us discovery on these issues.

8 THE COURT: Attorney Aytch, would you like to 9 be heard any further on document No. 16?

10 MS. AYTCH: Yes, yes, your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Go ahead.

12 MS. AYTCH: I'm sorry, again, where this Court 13 only allowed limited discovery in order to determine 14 whether or not to exercise personal jurisdiction, to see 15 every summary plan description for every employment 16 benefit plan, retirement plan, pension plan or profit-17 sharing plan where it sounds like the plaintiffs are 18 still just trying to determine whether or not Getinge 19 provides for this information for which we are putting 20 up the deponent, it just does not seem that the burden 21 in providing all of these documents is going to be 22 outweighed by the benefit of receiving information that 23 will otherwise be provided in a deposition. It's just 24 simply not proportional on the issue of jurisdiction.

25 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, I would just add two

1 points to the item 16, moving away from the document 2 itself.

3 One is that this document seeks, that this 4 particular request seeks information from Atrium, Atrium 5 which the Court does have jurisdiction of, and relating 6 to Atrium which no one disputes the jurisdiction of.

7 And two, this -- the passages that I've cited
8 are directly contradictory, and I'll walk the Court 9 through this throughout the course of today's argument, 10 but they're directly contradictory to the affidavit 11 signed by Mr. Mayer. And we, quite frankly, where we 12 have a document that says one thing, an affidavit that 13 says another, I think it's that, that that means we're 14 entitled to find out what the truth is between it and we 15 need documents to be able to probe the veracity of the 16 deposition testimony that's going to be offered 17 particularly in light of the fact that there are 18 documents that specifically dispute certain statements
19 and paragraphs in Mr. Mayer's declaration.

20 MS. AYTCH: Your Honor, may I respond one more 21 time, please?

22 THE COURT: Yes, you may. Go ahead.

23 MS. AYTCH: So this issue is again getting at, 24 you know, Atrium's documents and whether or not Getinge 25 has the power to hire or fire Atrium employees in

1 another of the 71 requests for production of documents
2 we agreed to provide Atrium's employee handbook to get 3 at this specific information, and we also again agreed 4 to provide information about who the payor is with 5 regard to any employment benefit plan, retirement plan, 6 et cetera. So the idea that they would need the exact 7 plan itself in order to ascertain this information that 8 goes to the jurisdiction, the court's jurisdiction over 9 Getinge with regard to Atrium employees still just does 10 not seem to be outweighed by the burden of producing 11 those documents when there's other ways to get them the 12 information that they desire.

14 MR. ORENT: Your Honor --

15 THE COURT: How many documents are we talking 16 about in terms of summary plan description and annual 17 reports? We're talking about I guess categories of 18 employees, so those employees under a specific benefit 19 plan, retirement plan, pension plan? You're not talking 20 about every single employee, you're talking about a 21 summary plan description or annual report or summary 22 documentation of categories of plans, right?

24 THE COURT: Okay.

25 MR. ORENT: And if I --

1 THE COURT: All right. I think I've heard
2 enough. This one is -- I think the plaintiffs have the 3 stronger argument here and I am going to order that 4 defendants produce Requests For Production document No.
5 16.

6 Let's go to 35 and 36. Those are very closely
7 related. And Request for Production 35 are documents 8 that reveal human resources and management processes of 9 Getinge, Maquet and Atrium. And then there's an 10 including but not limited to employment handbook, 11 standards or forms used in employee review process, et 12 cetera, hiring and firing, and that plaintiffs argue is 13 relevant frankly for the same reasons it's relevant to 14 show Getinge's dominion or control over Atrium, power to 15 hire and fire, responsible for deciding benefits and 16 compensation. It goes to many of the same issues under 17 16, and for the same reasons I am inclined to grant that 18 request and order production, but I want to obviously 19 give Attorney Aytch an opportunity to tell me what would 20 be different about No. 35 that would warrant me to treat 21 it differently than summary plan descriptions and annual 22 reports from Atrium.

23 MS. AYTCH: I'm sorry, your Honor, you're 24 asking specifically as to No. 35 to Atrium?

25 THE COURT: No. 35, yeah. Why should I not

1 order you to produce 35. And I'm jumping ahead to 35 2 because 35 and 36 seem so closely related to 16. I've 3 already granted 16. I will tell you that I'm inclined 4 to grant 35 and 36 for the same reasons I see as 5 relevant to plaintiffs' claim and proportional to the 6 needs of the case. It's a limited issue.
7 Jurisdictional discovery. Considering the importance of 8 that issue in the case, considering the amount of 9 controversy, the parties' relevant access to relevant 10 information, the parties' resources, the importance of 11 the discovery in resolving this issue, and then weighing 12 the burden or expense of the discovery, I find that the 13 burden or expense of the proposed discovery is 14 outweighed by its likely benefit.

15 So, I have made that finding as to No. 16.
16 I'm inclined to make that finding as to 35 and 36. Tell 17 me why I'm wrong on that.

18 MS. AYTCH: I understand, your Honor. The 19 first thing is that No. 35 and No. 36 don't deal with 20 Atrium specifically but with Getinge. So, we have 21 agreed to give those documents with regard to Atrium.

22 Simply here the human resources and management
23 process as to Getinge AB globally as a conglomerate 24 company we don't feel necessarily moves the ball any 25 further than giving those documents with regard to

1 Atrium if they want to see if Getinge is exerting any 2 control. Moreover -- I mean just in terms of how that 3 relates to these benefactors, moreover particularly 4 because these are Getinge AB documents, we run the 5 specific issue with the Swedish privacy laws that we 6 brought up before.

7 So during the meet and confer we were 8 discussing with plaintiff that in many instances we want 9 to get them the documents, however, under the current 10 Swedish personal data act that implements the EU data 11 protection directive, and as of May 25, 2018, the 12 general data protection regulation has severe sanctions 13 for companies that violate these acts, criminal and 14 civil penalties, so what we were trying to do is be able 15 to get documents that are necessary without having to 16 pull them from your Swedish parent company.

17 So, here where this would have to come 18 directly from Getinge and the information that it would 19 go to show, to the degree that it would go to show that 20 Getinge is controlling Atrium, would be found in the 21 Atrium documents that we've already agreed to turn over.

22 THE COURT: Okay. This Swedish privacy act 23 argument is not, I don't think it's anywhere in your 24 documents. I know that it was raised previously. I 25 don't --

1 MS. AYTCH: Your Honor, you're correct, we did 2 not include that portion in our one-page letter. That 3 was an omission on our part.

4 THE COURT: Okay. And that seems a rather 5 significant hurdle and maybe one that would require 6 litigation, formal litigation which would thereby, you 7 know, lengthen the time for this jurisdictional 8 discovery to be completed, Attorney Orent. I assume 9 you've already thought through that and you nonetheless 10 are pushing forth on this request for 35 and 36. Both 11 35 and 36 raise that same issue, Attorney Aytch, with 12 respect to Getinge?

13 MS. AYTCH: Yes, I believe 35 is documents 14 evidencing human resources and management process of 15 Getinge and then 36 is any and all documents pertaining 16 to the hiring and firing processes of key personnel of 17 executive -- key personnel including executive and 18 officers of Getinge.

19 THE COURT: Okay. And you're willing, 20 however, to agree to give all of that info under 35 and 21 36 with respect to Atrium?

22 MS. AYTCH: Correct. Which I believe was a 23 preceding, it was a separate RPD, I don't have it in 24 front of me, but it was a separate RPD and we agreed to 25 give those documents -- the employee handbook, rather,

1 for Atrium.

2 THE COURT: And what about Maquet?

3 MS. AYTCH: I apologize for the pause, your 4 Honor, I was actually just thinking at our meet and 5 confer when the plaintiffs withdrew their request for 6 30(b)(6) deponent as to Maquet Cardiovascular when we 7 raised in the prior letter our concerns with 8 jurisdictional discoveries to that entity, so I do not 9 believe, and Mr. Orent can step in and correct me, I do 10 not believe that when we went through the RPDs we were 11 discussing at all that entity thinking that the main 12 jurisdictional issues were around Atrium and Getinge.

13 MR. ORENT: That's correct, your Honor.

14 THE COURT: In your agenda item for 1e and 1f 15 you include Getinge, Maquet and Atrium, all three.

16 MS. AYTCH: That's correct, your Honor, and -- 17 I'm sorry, and that we were pulling just the literal 18 text of the RPD. After we had the meet and confer is 19 when we narrowed that scope, and our apologies, we just 20 pulled the original language of the RPD.

21 THE COURT: Okay, so what we're talking about 22 now is just Getinge. And Attorney Orent, the way this 23 is presented to me, to the Court, is the dispute centers
24 around these documents with respect to Getinge, Maquet, 25 Atrium for 35 and 36. And so now what you're both

1 telling me is that Maquet is out, Atrium is out because 2 defendants are agreeing to provide all of this with 3 respect to Atrium, and so the only thing left is a 4 dispute over Getinge. That would be helpful for the 5 Court if in the future you would just tell me the narrow 6 nature of the scope of what the dispute is because 7 obviously as I'm reading and preparing I'm thinking 8 you're disputing all three of these companies.

9 So, Attorney Orent, now it shifts to you
10 because clearly Attorney Aytch has the Swedish privacy 11 act as some sort of hurdle and in her mind it's a fairly 12 major hurdle and she is providing everything regarding 13 Atrium, and so the dispute only concerns Getinge. Is 14 there a way that the two of you could meet and confer 15 further on agenda items 1e and f and see if you couldn't 16 come up with some limiting proposal that would resolve 17 these issues in a way that would be satisfactory to both 18 of you, because right now what I'm hearing is if in fact 19 I were to on an informal basis say, okay, I'm inclined 20 to approve 1e and 1f, if I were to say that, it sounds 21 like we'd have formal litigation in our hands with 22 respect to that issue. I could be wrong about that.
23 But I don't want to create formal litigation, I'd rather 24 avoid it if we can. Is there a way that I can send e 25 and f back to you? I was inclined just in the preparing

1 that I was doing for this hearing, this seemed relevant 2 to me, and having heard the arguments you both made with 3 respect to the sealed merger documents, I was persuaded 4 that there is enough there to at least give Attorney
5 Orent the ability to argue relevance, but I am concerned 6 about this running up against this privacy act and 7 creating litigation and delay. And I suspect, Attorney 8 Orent, that's not something you're interested in either.
9 I'm happy to obviously try to expedite any ruling on 10 this in the future if there is a need for formal 11 litigation, but I don't see why you can't resolve this 12 and perhaps meet and confer knowing that the Court is 13 inclined to see the relevance of this, and I just don't 14 know what kind of hurdle that privacy act represents 15 but, you know, I'm also sympathetic to some limits on 16 the information as to Getinge.

17 So Attorney Orent, are you able to help us
18 move the ball forward?

19 MR. ORENT: I hope so, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Go ahead.

21 MR. ORENT: You know, one of the things during 22 the meet and confer process that I had offered and have 23 offered for a number of issues is to engage in 24 stipulations, your Honor. You know, for the purposes of 25 this process for us, you know, with regard to Getinge

1 AB's policies and procedures, there is a benefit to 2 understanding whether or not those policies and 3 procedures were then brought to Atrium and that there is 4 a parody and that the sets of policies and procedures
5 are in fact identical. So, to the extent the defendant 6 is willing to stipulate that they are in fact identical, 7 if they are in fact identical, that is an issue that 8 could avoid litigating this any further in totality.

9 That being said, I am not as convinced as 10 defense counsel that either the EU blocking statutes or 11 the Swedish statutes hold any degree of authority over 12 this Court. I believe, and we cited this case law, your 13 Honor, in our reply brief, I believe it's beginning at 14 around page ten or eleven of our reply brief on the 15 jurisdictional issues, we go through several major MDL 16 cases that actually allow for discovery and find that 17 the court should not be bound by, blindly bound by the 18 Swedish, or in that case I think it was a German 19 protection statute, but nonetheless the case law that we 20 cite is on point, that an American federal court is not 21 bound by the privacy laws of another country. And quite 22 frankly, it's not clear to me how a policy manual or a 23 procedure guide would in fact implicate the privacy of 24 any individual. I'm not quite seeing that. But 25 nonetheless, I think that the simplest way to get from

1 point A to point B would be for the defendants to simply 2 take an inventory and identify as a preliminary step 3 whether or not they are identical. And if they are 4 identical policies, then we could enter a simple 5 stipulation to that fact, and I think that that would 6 move the ball practically forward without having to get 7 into legal briefing as to what the impact of the Swedish 8 statute is.

9 Alternatively, I would be open to 10 understanding --

11 THE COURT: Let's stop there. Let's stop 12 there. Attorney Aytch, would you be okay with that?

13 MS. AYTCH: I guess I would need to pose a 14 question back. Are we doing the stipulation -- so if 15 they are in fact not identical, and I can't imagine that 16 they are where certain U.S. laws are here that are not 17 in Europe, so would the stipulation be that if they're 18 not identical and then plaintiff would relinquish their 19 request for those documents?

20 THE COURT: I think what he meant was if 21 there's a stipulation that they are identical. What do 22 you do, Attorney Orent, if they are not identical?

23 MR. ORENT: Well, I think if they're not 24 identical, I think that the next step would be for the 25 defendants to redact all personal information that is

1 somehow implicating of the Swedish act. Again, as I 2 said before, it's not clear how policy manuals would be, 3 would fall under a privacy protection act, but to the 4 extent that the defendants believe that, I think the 5 second step would be for defendants to redact and 6 produce that material nonetheless.

7 I think as a third and final step we could,
8 ultimately, if we can't get around this in that order,
9 then the Court could resolve whether the Swedish privacy 10 law is binding upon it. But as I said, I think that 11 we've already briefed that issue, but the Court has not 12 ultimately needed to decide it previously.

13 THE COURT: Okay. Are you all right with 14 using this as a way forward for resolving agenda items
15 1e and f, Attorney Aytch, and that is as I understand 16 it, by stipulation and agreement that if policies and 17 procedures are identical between Getinge and Atrium, 18 then there would be a stipulation to that effect. And 19 if they're not identical, then redact whatever 20 information that you can disclose, redact information 21 that cannot be disclosed due to the privacy act, and 22 then to the extent there are any remaining disputes, you 23 would bring those to me.

24 MS. AYTCH: Your Honor, I really hate to be 25 difficult here. So, in terms of reviewing them, to let

1 opposing counsel know whether or not they're identical 2 or not, we're fine to let them know. I have to be quite 3 honest that I don't know that I can let opposing counsel
4 or the Court know by Wednesday, but we'll endeavor to do
5 that. However, if they are different, as I presume that 6 they are, I would ask the Court's indulgence to speak 7 with leaders counsel because it's not just the 8 production of the information, it is also the processing 9 of information. So, before I confirm to the Court that 10 a mere redaction would absolve the corporation from any 11 penalties I want to get that from a more authoritative 12 source. And again, your Honor, I really hate to do 13 this, but if that is not the case, we would be seeking 14 formal briefing on this issue.

15 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Well, I think 16 you're not being unreasonable at all. And what I would 17 suggest, then, is let's take e and f sort of off the 18 table or off the agenda at this point. I'm not going to 19 give you even an informal ruling at this point, and that 20 way you don't need to request some sort of extension to 21 litigate formally.

22 What I would ask you both to do is to try to 23 work within the confines of this proposal from Attorney 24 Orent to try to reach stipulations with respect to these 25 policies and procedures. And if you can get counsel to 1 agree to disclosure with redactions where, you know, 2 where you can't stipulate that they are identical and 3 provide these, you know, in a timely manner to 4 plaintiff, to Attorney Orent, then it seems to me 5 hopefully that would take e and f off the agenda and 6 hopefully with meet and confer processes the two of you

7 can resolve those two issues. If you cannot resolve 8 them and they remain, it seems to me these are issues 9 that, for the reasons you just said, if they involve me 10 deciding the applicability of some sort of international 11 or other non-U.S. statutes, then that may require some 12 litigation. And I understand Attorney Orent is not 13 going to want to have formal litigation delay this 14 jurisdictional discovery. So I think both counsel will 15 be motivated hopefully to resolve e and f so that the 16 Court does not have to resolve a dispute and then 17 perhaps engage in formal litigation with counsel.

18 So let's do that. Let's take e and f off the 19 agenda for now. I'm going to kick both of those back to 20 counsel and see if you can't work out a resolution of 21 the two of them along the lines we just discussed.

22 Okay, so let's move now to agenda item 1b
23 which is No. 24. Let me just look at those for a moment 24 so I can remember what they are.

25 (Pause.)

1 THE COURT: Okay, I think I've got my head
2 back into Request for Production No. 24, and let me just 3 see if I am correct about where the dispute remains. So 4 counsel, if you just let me see if I'm able to summarize 5 this.

6 No. 24 deals with minutes of every meeting of 7 managers, members, shareholders and/or board of 8 directors of Getinge for each of the years 2009 to 9 present. Okay. It looks as though with respect to 2009
10 through 2011 there really isn't any disagreement. You 11 have agreed, I think, the way I'm reading your letter, 12 to give those meeting notes with redactions, so what it 13 would contain would be the meeting date, the attendees
14 and then any info regarding Atrium C-Qur, everything 15 else would be redacted. That's one pile of material.

16 And then there's another pile over which there 17 is a dispute, and that would be meeting minutes from 18 2011 to the present. And what plaintiffs would like 19 would be for the same thing you've agreed to with 20 respect to 2009 to the present which is meeting dates, 21 attendees and then just redact anything that is not 22 mentioning Atrium or C-Qur. And my understanding is the 23 defendants are saying we don't want to present meetings, 24 dates and attendees for every single subsidiary of 25 Getinge because there are over 200 of them, and I think

1 what you're saying is that plaintiffs do not need the 2 meeting dates and attendees where there is no mention of 3 Atrium or C-Qur.

4 Have I summarized that correctly?

5 MR. ORENT: Somewhat, your Honor, for the 6 plaintiffs.

7 THE COURT: Okay. So tell me where I'm off.

8 MR. ORENT: There's a couple things. We are 9 seeking, first of all, the board of director meeting 10 minutes for Getinge AB, just that single entity which is 11 the parent company of, as the defendants have pointed 12 out, 200 subsidiaries, but we're only seeking the board 13 of director minutes for that one entity.

14 Now, with respect to we are primarily 15 interested in things that discuss specifically Atrium or 16 C-Qur, however, as I indicated to defendants there are 17 also a category of documents -- excuse me, a category of 18 decisions and discussions that will relate to 19 generically all subsidiaries. So, for example, if 20 Getinge AB says we're going to replace all of the health 21 insurance plans throughout all of our companies with 22 Blue Cross/Blue Shield, for example, I'm just making an 23 up a hypothetical, but they don't specifically address
24 Atrium, well, in that particular instance the defendants 25 wouldn't produce that document, those meeting minutes

1 because it doesn't specifically mention Atrium, yet it
2 would go to the test of whether the corporate parent, 3 Getinge AB, is exercising dominion and control by making 4 the decision over what health care policy is provided to 5 the subsidiary.

6 So, what we are disagreeing about is whether 7 or not essentially a concept that is exercising dominion 8 or control where the words Atrium or C-Qur are not used, 9 we believe that we're entitled to all of the relevant 10 board meeting minutes where that is the case, where 11 there is discussion, whether it mentions Atrium or C-Qur 12 specifically, we think we're entitled to the content of 13 those that bear on the issues that we're talking about.

14 The second point, your Honor, is that we 15 believe that we need the identities of the individuals 16 who are present at the meetings and the dates of those 17 meetings for that one board. It is not an overly 18 onerous task to redact or just the board of directors 19 for Getinge AB. There is information beyond the -- 20 there is information that can be gleaned from that that 21 will allow us to make decisions about whether or not we 22 need to in fact go further and seek additional documents
23 or have the redactions removed. For example, we know 24 for example that there's a significant overlap of the 25 boards between the two groups. However what we don't

1 know is what if an individual with involvement in 2 product development comes to the Getinge AB and that he 3 later on spends a month at Atrium company exercising 4 dominion on behalf of them, well, there are bits of 5 information that we can glean from the record if we know 6 who a person is, what his job title is, and seeing that 7 an Atrium employee is at the board of director meeting 8 minutes for Getinge and we haven't been provided the 9 content of that, that will allow us to assure ourselves
10 particularly when we're not asking for all of the board 11 of director meeting minutes, we're allowing for the 12 redaction of them, that will give us the assurance that 13 whatever TAQC is done is capturing the relevant 14 information as it relates to Atrium and sales of C-Qur 15 and dominion over Atrium in the United States without 16 making the defendants produce every single document to 17 us and allowing us to really get what we need to make 18 decisions about whether or not the discussions were 19 involving exercising dominion because that, quite 20 frankly, the board of directors is where ultimately 21 those decisions would be made or might be made, the 22 level of exercise and dominion that does occur over each 23 of the subsidiaries.

24 So really the first thing is that the 25 stipulation or whatever agreement to produce can't be

1 limited to the names Atrium and C-Qur, but it needs to 2 conceptually go beyond that to areas where all 3 subsidiaries are also affected.

4 And secondarily, the mechanism of protection
5 is just these dates and identities of attendees.

6 THE COURT: Okay, well, I will confess that 7 because of the way this is presented your argument is 8 essentially summarizing a sentence in your letter, 9 Attorney Orent, and what I have from the defendants is 10 essentially those two piles of material with redactions, 11 and my understanding of the dispute is limited frankly 12 to the detail that is present in the defendants' letter.
13 So, forgive me for not really being clear on what it is 14 you're really looking for here and what it is you 15 actually already agreed to between the two of you.

16 So, you're not seeking meetings for over 200 17 subsidiaries then, you're not looking for minutes for 18 those --

19 MR. ORENT: That's correct, your Honor, we're 20 solely --

21 THE COURT: Okay, let me stop there. Stop 22 there for a minute. Okay. So that removes what seems 23 to be a fairly big concern of the defendants because 24 that seems to be your major argument, this idea that you 25 get unfettered production of all Getinge AB minutes and

1 all those 200 subsidiaries, where now they're just 2 asking for minutes for board meetings, et cetera, for 3 Getinge AB, and what they want are meeting dates, 4 attendees, you know, any mentions of C-Qur and anything 5 else that might bear on Atrium. Sorry? Hello? Is 6 everybody there? Can you hear me?

7 MS. AYTCH: Yes, I'm still here.

8 MR. ORENT: We can hear you, judge.

9 THE COURT: Okay, all right. So I'm sorry, I
10 think that I'm going to need some help from Attorney 11 Aytch telling me, I was a little confused here, why 12 can't you produce what he has just described?

13 MS. AYTCH: So, your Honor, what we were 14 saying is that the unfettered production of all Getinge
15 AB minutes which is an entity with over 200 16 subsidiaries, so not all 200 subsidiaries' minutes but 17 the fact just Getinge's minutes is going to address a 18 whole lot of information that's not at all relevant to 19 the entities at issue in this case is what we were 20 stating there.

21 But again, this is something that we did not 22 put in the position paper, but what this still gets at 23 is getting them the information that they needed without 24 running afoul of the privacy law. And I do have to make 25 a correction that we just confirmed this morning. The

1 offer that we were making in order to limit the 2 production of Getinge's minutes with regard to Atrium or 3 C-Qur Mesh, so that would include anything that would 4 be, you know, conglomerate wide because it would affect 5 Atrium, but any minutes that affected Atrium we were 6 previously under the impression would be stateside, so 7 that's something that would be here on the stateside and 8 we could produce that. I have just gotten confirmation 9 today that that is not the case, while communication 10 about the minutes, the minutes themselves, are not held 11 here. So, this is still another thing that would hit 12 the privacy laws including, which is why we were not 13 originally receptive to just, you know, the redacting of 14 everything except names and dates, including the 15 identities of these people from the Getinge AB side.

16 So, our concern was one, it seems that it is a 17 fishing expedition just to try to compare topics and 18 minutes, because any of that information would be 19 revealed in a number of other documents if there is 20 dominion and control that we are agreeing to produce 21 within the 71 requests for documents and I think we got 22 an additional 30 today where this is supposed to be 23 limited discovery. And additionally, the minutes that 24 we were offering, which would be anything that regards 25 Atrium, would suffice for that proffer. We are

1 definitely going to endeavor to get that because we're 2 going to have to go back to Swedish counsel per your 3 request with the last two and figure out how to come 4 around it, but the issue still is with regard to all of 5 Getinge's minutes is the data privacy act as well as 6 just simply the fishing expedition to get all of Getinge 7 AB's minutes even when it has nothing to do with the 8 running of the organization as a whole or Atrium and 9 C-Qur Mesh specifically.

10 THE COURT: Okay. All right. Well, I just do 11 not have enough information to decide this in a way that 12 makes me feel comfortable. I think the way it's been 13 presented to me is confusing at best. And what I would 14 say to you is, and again, you know, I'm going to ask you 15 to meet and confer on b as well as e and f because 16 you're going to have to resubmit this to me in a way
17 that I can actually help you, because at this point I 18 prepared for something that looked fairly narrow in 19 scope and I'm not clear at all until I get to this 20 conference as to what really is in dispute here, and I
21 don't know quite how to fix that, but I do think making 22 more of an effort in writing to give me the scope of 23 your remaining disputes in a way that is helpful so that 24 I can actually rule on it, at least informally, give you 25 my informal ruling, it would be so much more productive

1 if you spent I think more time on these informal 2 discovery letters, brief letters.

3 I think agenda item 1b, my inclination would 4 be to grant this type of discovery. It seems relevant 5 to me. It seems fairly limited. And it seems as 6 though, you know, associates at your firm could go 7 through these minutes and certainly redact anything that 8 did not deal with Atrium, C-Qur or, you know, every 9 single entity or company that it was a subsidiary to 10 Getinge which might include Atrium, that seems like a 11 limited request and it seems relevant to the question of 12 dominion and control. So, that's my just, I'm just 13 giving you my general sense of agenda item 1b. I think 14 you can take these back, meet and confer, and then at 15 this point if it involves some sort of decision I'm 16 going to need to make on the applicability of some 17 Swedish or EU statutes, then I think you should presume 18 that you should be briefing that. That seems 19 complicated enough that I'm not that comfortable just 20 trying to do some sort of informal resolution. I think 21 that just further delays things.

22 So, I'm going to send item 1b back to the two 23 of you understanding that frankly with respect to item 24 1b, e and f, I'm inclined, essentially inclined to as a 25 general matter order that kind of discovery for

1 plaintiff. So, that's as informal as it gets. Let's 2 put it that way. I'm giving you just a sense of things.

3 But I think we need to move to items 1c and d, 4 and I've got to say, I am not going to trust my 5 understanding of what the issue is at this point, so I'm 6 just going to throw it out to both of you. As I 7 understand item 1c, we're talking about Request for 8 Production No. 26 which is cash and non-cash assets, and 9 I couldn't tell from your letter if in fact that issue 10 was off the table or not, and when I say your letter I'm 11 talking to defendants.

12 MS. AYTCH: I'm sorry, your Honor, to 13 interrupt you, but before -- you're looking like you're 14 definitely moving on and I wanted to see if we could 15 back up to Request for Production No. 24. If I could 16 get clarification. I know that you want us to take it 17 back, but you were generally giving your inclination, 18 and as I jotted it down, and I want to be clear, that 19 your inclination would be to grant this discovery but 20 redact anything that wasn't relevant to Atrium or, you 21 know, all of the entities as a whole.

22 THE COURT: Correct.

23 MS. AYTCH: Okay. So, that was the 24 defendants' offer before. True enough we still have to 25 deal with the privacy part and not just every single

1 Getinge minute without reference to Atrium, but okay, I 2 just wanted to make sure on that.

3 THE COURT: And that's very informal. I
4 frankly -- what I'd like to have the two of you do or 5 all of you do is just meet and confer on b, e and f 6 before giving you something even, even more definitive, 7 okay? Item 1c.

8 MR. ORENT: Your Honor --

9 THE COURT: We really need to move on because 10 at this point I think we spent a lot of time just trying 11 to figure out what the dispute is and clarifying for me 12 what the scope of the dispute is. So, go ahead, 13 Attorney Orent. I am understanding you to be seeking 14 cash and non-cash assets held by Getinge AB, 2011 to the 15 present, including real estate, real property but not 16 limited to that. And you're saying that's relevant to 17 show intermingling of assets and failing to observe, you 18 know, if there was failure to observe any corporate 19 formalities. And the defendants' letter on that, it's 20 not clear to me where the scope of the dispute is.
21 So --

22 MR. ORENT: Well, your Honor, we had continued 23 to meet and confer yesterday and today and we reached 24 actually an agreement on this item provided we --

25 THE COURT: Good.

1 MR. ORENT: -- put it on the record. And that 2 is that defendants had agreed to produce this material
3 as related to any transfers of cash and non-cash assets 4 worldwide between the two entities as well as any assets
5 within the United States, and I just want to make sure 6 that defendants agree that I have represented that 7 correctly to the Court.

8 MS. AYTCH: Correct. Which we believe are 9 request Nos. 8 and 9, and then also the land, the 10 addresses and things like that I believe we also 11 discussed.

12 MR. ORENT: Okay.

13 THE COURT: Got everything on the record you 14 need there, both of you?

15 MR. ORENT: Yes, your Honor.

16 MS. AYTCH: Yes.

17 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So our last 18 discovery dispute other than the privilege log issue is 19 No. 27, the question of co-branding. So, go ahead, I'm 20 not going to articulate what I understand this dispute
21 to be, I'm going to let you guys tell me what the issue 22 is. Attorney Orent, go ahead.

23 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, Getinge we believe 24 exercises dominion and control over its subsidiaries
25 through what Getinge has trademarked the Getinge Group,

1 and currently the Atrium C-Qur devices are sold and 2 marketed under the Getinge name. Defendants have taken
3 the position that that is Getinge Group, not Getinge AB, 4 and we believe that all of the decisions were made to 5 co-brand and co-market and portray all of the products 6 as well as the physical property located in New 7 Hampshire as Getinge through a joint marketing campaign 8 where Getinge AB made all of the decisions. And so what 9 we had done is we have requested the decisionmaking to 10 market Getinge and its Atrium subsidiary as one company
11 together. Defendants in their brief cite the Enterprise
12 Rent-A-Car case for the proposition that Enterprise 13 Rent-A-Car is portrayed as a single brand for the 14 public, but this evidence does not demonstrate the 15 necessary control by the defendant over -- excuse me, 16 defendant parent over the subsidiaries.

17 And, your Honor, we believe that we're 18 entitled to this. It goes to a number of the subparts
19 of the text that I referenced earlier and that this case 20 is actually unrelated. The Enterprise Rent-A-Car case, 21 your Honor, is a Fair Labor Standards Act case that 22 doesn't bear on discovery and certainly doesn't bear on 23 the elements as described here in terms of whether 24 something is discoverable or not. The issue here as in 25 this Enterprise case was simply whether or not joint

1 marketing was dispositive of an employment, who the 2 employer was for purposes of the FLSA.

3 So, we don't believe that there's any 4 application to this particular case. We think that it 5 goes to the heart of the test that the Court will be 6 applying in this particular case for alter ego and it is 7 the single most important item that we are seeking in 8 discovery.

9 THE COURT: Attorney Aytch.

10 MS. AYTCH: Well, hopefully this does come 11 very close to our position paper so any inferences that 12 the Court would have drawn from that will be accurate.

13 So, we have kind of two major objections here.
14 First, the any and all part is not at all a limitation 15 in itself, it is just overbroad, especially the way that 16 you would probably try to interpret what any and all 17 documents describing this decision to co-brand would 18 mean. But moreover to the substance at point, as our 19 briefing shows and as this Enterprise Rent-A-Car case 20 shows is the decision to brand as a single brand to the 21 public does not bear on further control that a parent 22 would have over a subsidiary beyond just the 23 co-branding. So just the decision itself to co-brand is 24 all that is necessary for this determination, not what 25 led up to that decision, because co-branding in and of

1 itself is not a way that a company would exert dominion
2 or control. So, trying to get at all -- any and all 3 documents which is already overbroad that deal with the 4 decision to co-brand -- hello?

5 THE COURT: Go ahead.

6 MS. AYTCH: I'm sorry. That deal with this 7 decision to co-brand would have come from a larger 8 level, so again, hitting the privacy law. It is just 9 not, it's not proportional to the needs of 10 jurisdictional discovery where the decision itself does 11 not have any bearing on whether or not there is dominion 12 and control exercised over the subsidiaries.

13 THE COURT: Okay. Let me just ask you.
14 Wouldn't it be relevant how a parent company or how any 15 company would deliberate about co-branding, in other 16 words, how the decision is made and how it's directed 17 and how they are communicating, whether they are at 18 arm's length as they make this decision or whether it's 19 dictated from, for instance, Getinge AB or -- why isn't 20 that relevant? Why wouldn't that indicate or 21 potentially have indicia of control or dominion?

22 MS. AYTCH: Because the decision to co-brand 23 and just have the goodwill of one unifying household 24 name isn't the dominion and control over the daily 25 activities of any subsidiary which is what the case law

1 is looking to. So it is not like a larger scheme that 2 we're putting in place, but it's the dominion and 3 control over daily activities. So the idea to co-brand 4 just simply isn't one of the factors that gets us that 5 dispositive issue.

6 THE COURT: Okay. I'm not clear on why, you 7 know, emails or other documents that would explain the 8 decision to co-brand, why that communication wouldn't be 9 relevant or potentially relevant?

10 MS. AYTCH: Again, your Honor, it's just the 11 fact that -- so even if they were all making the 12 decision to co-brand and the decision came from the top 13 to have all of its subsidiaries co-brand under Getinge, 14 it doesn't go to any control over the daily activity.
15 So how they got to the decision to co-brand so that they 16 can increase the goodwill of the name simply just 17 doesn't go to whether or not there is sufficient contact 18 by a foreign entity in the U.S., especially where that 19 decision is made at a global level but does not touch 20 that U.S. entity's daily operations and activities. And 21 so just the burden of producing all of that information 22 is just not proportional to proving this particular 23 issue as it goes to jurisdictional discovery, because 24 the decision to co-brand does not show the requisite 25 control which is what the Enterprise case and all of the 1 other cases in our briefing is showing.

2 THE COURT: Well, the fact that co-branding 3 perhaps, but how they got to the decision and how they 4 deliberated about why they would do this, why they would 5 co-brand and where the decision is coming from, what's 6 motivating it, who's directing it, why isn't that a 7 relevant area for plaintiffs to pursue? I understand 8 what you're saying about just the co-branding, the fact 9 that there is co-branding does not necessarily answer 10 the question, but in terms of documents, emails and 11 communications between, you know, between the heads of 12 companies and executives at Getinge AB and perhaps 13 Getinge Group and, you know, perhaps others that would 14 indicate how they deliberated about this decision, 15 that's what I'm wondering.

16 MS. AYTCH: I understand, your Honor. Let me 17 see if I can answer this in a better way. Because even 18 conceding that the -- even if we were to concede for 19 argument that that came from the top, so if there are 20 top executives discussing that and making that decision, 21 that decision to co-brand, and so identify through these 22 facts of co-branding does not show domination of the 23 subsidiary's daily operations and policies by the parent 24 company and that's really what I'm getting at. It's not 25 the dominion of just, you know, how we're going to be

1 branded. That decision can be made at the top. It is 2 whether or not the parent is controlling the daily 3 operation, and so however the parent decided to get to 4 the decision to co-brand isn't that issue the way the 5 defendant reads the case law, your Honor. I hope that 6 was a little bit more pointed to your question.

7 THE COURT: Okay. Attorney Orent.

8 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, I think your Honor
9 understands our point so I'm not going to belabor it. I 10 would just point out one thing. In that the fifth part 11 of the test, actually, also is the mere fact of 12 representing to the public that the corporations are a 13 single entity, and this is why there was a distinction
14 with the Enterprise case where in the Enterprise case 15 the mere fact of the joint marketing for fair labor 16 standards was not a dispositive item. Here with the 17 Bennett case versus GAF Corp., not only is it 18 dispositive or a factor that the Court considers that 19 it's representing to the public that the corporations 20 are a single entity, i.e. the joint marketing campaign, 21 but also the decisionmaking goes to it, so both of those 22 are directly on point here and so we believe that this 23 is a stronger case and in fact we believe that these are 24 essential documents both to understand the extent to 25 which Atrium had any decision whatsoever in the 1 determination to joint market as well as how that was 2 ultimately executed because they are now holding 3 themselves out, we believe, to be a single company.

4 THE COURT: Okay. This seems like, and you've 5 described this, Attorney Orent, as the single most 6 important discovery request, at least in this universe
7 of disputes for this status conference?

8 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, we believe that this 9 is perhaps more than even a lot of other items in 10 discovery, that this goes to the core of who these 11 companies are.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Okay, well, then, I do not 13 have enough to rule on this, so I'm going to have -- I 14 only have essentially one case that you've given me. So 15 what I'm going to do is ask you to brief Request for 16 Production No. 27, and if you could file your briefing
17 to compel, motion to compel No. 27 within seven days, 18 would that be sufficient time, Attorney Orent?

19 MR. ORENT: It is, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay. And then seven days for a 21 response, Attorney Aytch?

22 MS. AYTCH: Yes, your Honor.

23 THE COURT: And then I'll at least have time
24 to more carefully review this. I don't think what I 25 have is sufficient, so I'm not totally comfortable

1 giving you even an informal decision on this. I think 2 -- I think any and all documents are too broad just 3 informally. I think, Attorney Orent, if you could come 4 -- if you could limit that in some way, then perhaps 5 Attorney Aytch and you could work through some sort of 6 agreement on this. I don't have enough to give you even 7 a strong leaning on No. 27 based on everything that I've 8 heard and everything that I've read. So we'll brief
9 agenda item 1d. And Attorney Orent, if you could file 10 your brief within seven days, and then within seven days 11 thereafter, Attorney Aytch, you can file your response.
12 And I'm hoping for no reply or surreply briefing. That 13 will get it to me and I can try to get you a decision 14 fairly quickly.

15 Okay, so that leaves only one dispute
16 remaining, the privilege log dispute. And this one I 17 think you both have presented an issue at least in a way 18 that I think I understand it, and hopefully I can give 19 you at least an informal resolution to this. And let me 20 just start by making sure I understand what it is 21 defendants are proposing.

22 I think you're proposing that you essentially 23 just categorically in a paragraph indicate that you're 24 withholding all documents that are post-litigation which 25 I believe is 2011 is your -- I'm sorry?

1 MS. AYTCH: May 2012, your Honor.

2 THE COURT: May 2012. Thank you. That 3 anything after that date that is a communication with 4 inhouse or outside counsel and anybody else within the 5 defendants' companies, you would be withholding those 6 documents, all of them, on the basis of a presumptive 7 privilege. Is that right?

8 MS. AYTCH: Correct, for those documents, your 9 Honor.

10 THE COURT: Okay. All right. And your 11 rationale for this is essentially that it is too 12 burdensome and you do cite case law that supports this 13 rationale that where you're talking about huge numbers 14 of documents, that some courts have approved this 15 presumptive privilege. Let me ask you, though, 16 plaintiffs say that it's very clear from what they 17 received in discovery that your, the companies' already 18 categorized this kind of data and it would not be 19 particularly burdensome because it's really frankly 20 already been logged.

21 So, can you respond to that just threshold 22 question of whether or not this is something that is 23 already information that you would be able to log.

24 MS. AYTCH: No, your Honor. We have not 25 already item-by-item logged all of this kind of

1 information. My understanding is that in this category 2 we have over a hundred thousand documents, closer to,
3 sorry, over a 150,000 documents that would need to be 4 reviewed in a log in this way, just between, you know, 5 outside counsel and the client with regard to this 6 litigation that's gone on for nearly 12 years, all of 7 this has not been logged. With regard to like the 8 larger production, if there is anything that's been 9 mentioned, I'm sorry, excuse me, six years, but if 10 there's anything that's been mentioned in like smaller 11 production, so we're talking about the larger 12 production, no, that has not been undertaken and that 13 would be a huge task.

14 THE COURT: All right. Well, what I guess I 15 mean is that plaintiff seems to suggest that based on 16 computer programs that it looks as though this type of 17 metadata is metadata that is in the system and could be 18 produced.

19 MS. AYTCH: The metadata in terms of just a 20 file name and then maybe a to affirmative CC, but my 21 understanding of an appropriate log is also to provide a 22 reasoned act to, you know, what this is about, and 23 still, to do that for over approximately 160,000
24 documents in this large production, even if it spit it 25 out in a metadata kind of way, we're going to have to go

1 back and make sense of that. In doing the prior 2 production I have an idea -- I mean in prior logs I have 3 an idea of what plaintiffs may be referencing, but no, 4 it does not come out in any kind of discernible way,
5 that still would not be onerous where there's a 6 presumptive privilege to all of these documents.

7 THE COURT: And are you -- you reference
8 outside counsel. How many outside counsel are there?
9 Your firm and are there many other firms?

10 MS. AYTCH: Our firm and essentially local 11 counsel.

12 THE COURT: Okay. So essentially two outside 13 counsel firms.

14 MS. AYTCH: No, I apologize, that would just 15 be the litigation in New Hampshire. I am just trying to 16 run through a list on the top of my head. So let's say 17 maybe 15 or so total.

18 THE COURT: Fifteen firms?

19 MS. AYTCH: Yes, yes, your Honor.

20 THE COURT: Okay. All right. And obviously 21 there's inhouse counsel as well. You are also including 22 inhouse counsel or are you just talking about outside
23 counsel?

24 MS. AYTCH: I'm talking about communications 25 that travel between, you know, outside counsel and the

1 client. I'm sorry, I'm not sure if I'm exactly
2 answering your question, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: No, I think you are. So, outside 4 counsel, we can describe outside counsel as those 5 attorneys or firms representing the defendants in the 6 C-Qur litigation?

7 MS. AYTCH: Correct.

8 THE COURT: Or is that -- okay, all right.

9 MS. AYTCH: Well, I'm sorry, by C-Qur
10 litigation, so we have this MDL but we have all the 11 C-Qur litigation that has occurred because we've been 12 counsel with local counsel, so I'm not limiting it to 13 the MDL when you say C-Qur, clearly, I'm sorry, because 14 we said May 2012.

15 THE COURT: All right, okay. All right. So, 16 let me ask you this. What about if a third party is on 17 the communication. Obviously if a third party is on the 18 communication, that wouldn't be entitled to a 19 presumption of privilege. Is that something that you 20 could exclude?

21 MS. AYTCH: Of course, your Honor.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Okay. All right, and so 23 you're saying communications between inhouse counsel, 24 those communications we would provide a privilege log 25 on, we're just talking about outside counsel involving

1 Mesh litigation.

2 So, let me ask Attorney Orent. With respect
3 to inhouse counsel there would be a privilege log. It's 4 just with respect to outside counsel that Attorney Aytch 5 would be seeking this presumptive privilege and she is 6 saying she would not include -- she would not attach a 7 presumptive privilege to communications between outside 8 counsel and the client, the clients, when a third party 9 is present on the communication.

10 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, I'm actually concerned
11 and I'd like to raise an issue. It sounds to me like 12 the defendants have not reviewed these documents.

13 Even the case that the defendants cite 14 standing for the proposition that this process, and I
15 can get into distinctions later, but assuming for a 16 moment that there is case law without reference to any 17 of my distinctions that supports the proposition that a 18 party can be relieved of its obligation to log 19 privileged material, there is no case law that I have 20 seen that relieves a defendant from the obligation of 21 having to review. And my concern is it sounds like the 22 defendants have not even reviewed the documents and made 23 a formal determination as, at a document level, what is 24 their obligation regardless of the issue of review -- 25 excuse me, of logging. That is reviewing and making a

1 determination as to whether something constitutes an 2 attorney/client privilege. So, that's the first item 3 I'd like to highlight because it actually seriously and 4 significantly concerns me that a review has not begun.

5 Moving beyond that, your Honor, we have agreed 6 in this case to an electronic data production protocol, 7 an ESI protocol. That calls for the production of 8 certain metadata fields. Those identical fields along 9 with a categorization of something as attorney/client 10 privilege or work product are sufficient enough to get 11 us along the way. But that has never been offered to us 12 and that is something that can be computer generated 13 presuming that someone has made the decision 14 affirmatively to not produce a particular document.

15 Going back to my original concern is that not 16 everything between an attorney and his clients are 17 automatically, particularly when you're talking about a 18 corporate entity, not all communications are subject to 19 an attorney/client privilege. An individual, for 20 example, if legal advice is disseminated throughout the 21 entire company unnecessarily, that privilege doesn't 22 apply. There's a different analysis when it comes to 23 who the privilege applies to, what that privilege is and 24 the scope of it. Additionally with regard to the work 25 product privilege, the work product privilege is not an

1 absolute privilege.

2 So, at the outset, and I think we outline
3 this, I have significant concerns as to whether or not 4 this material the defendants are seeking a presumption, 5 that all of this material is going to be privileged 6 without having to make an actual determination. So 7 that's the first point I want to make.

8 The second point is the concern over the 9 volume here. So up until the TAR production in January 10 we were relying almost entirely on the state court 11 production, and what the defendants have now said here 12 today is that with 150,000 attorney communications that 13 they have made, that their production, that their 14 attorney/client communications are actually greater than 15 the entire production set of six years of litigation in 16 state court. So that's concerning to me.

17 And then finally we have concerns over the 18 proposed date of 2012 when the first MDL, when the MDL
19 was started a little over a year ago. So we had a 20 number of serious, serious concerns, and the rule is in 21 place, the case law supports creation of a privilege 22 log, and at least as a first pass we are willing to 23 allow just the metadata fields that can be produced 24 along with a description of attorney/client privilege or 25 work product to suffice for the purposes of the gigantic

1 log. When it gets down to, if there's a meet and confer 2 that occurs, then we would expect that those items that 3 need meet and conferring would get a little bit more 4 attention. But we certainly don't and have never 5 expected and throughout the course of our communications 6 with defendants we've insisted on anything but the 7 metadata that preexists and simply requires running a 8 report to be generated providing the type of 9 communication or document the individuals who were 10 copied on it and the author, the recipient, that sort of 11 typical information and the date.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Any objection to that just 13 initial production, Attorney Aytch?

14 MS. AYTCH: So I guess I'm trying to 15 understand what it is, like just setting out in Excel 16 spreadsheet that would still be item-by-item that had to 17 and from? I guess I'm still not understanding what it 18 is that Attorney Orent is saying that he would have 19 expected.

20 MR. ORENT: We would expect, we would accept a 21 to/from date, title, which is generated as well as a 22 categorization of attorney/client or work product and 23 the document type. All of those are part of the 24 metadata agreed to.

25 And just one final note, is not all

1 attorney/client communications are covered by the 2 privilege. It has to be actual legal advice rendered.
3 But for purposes of the privilege log we don't need any 4 more information than those items which are metadata
5 fields that were negotiated and agreed to, and an Excel 6 spreadsheet, presumably if we were actually provided the 7 actual Excel file, would be sufficient. Bates numbers 8 would also be helpful, which is the production ID that 9 goes along with it.

10 MS. AYTCH: But if it's privileged then it 11 wouldn't have been produced because it's privileged.

12 MR. ORENT: Well, presumably it was removed 13 from privilege between two pages, and typically how I've 14 seen productions go and I assume that you all have done 15 it the same way is that there's a missing page between 16 and then, for example, you put a slip sheet, you know, 17 and we've seen places in documents that you've produced 18 where there are actions or things of attorney/client 19 privilege where there's a moniker noted and presumably 20 those were recorded somewhere as to what was removed 21 from production that we're not getting, so that if we 22 ever had to have the discussion again, we would get it.
23 So, again, that information should exist.

24 MS. AYTCH: I understand your point but so 25 that is for the attorney/client privilege information

1 that does not have a presumptive privilege. Here where 2 we're talking about, you know, outside counsel and local 3 counsel, so us, speaking to the client, is presumptively 4 privileged because more likely than not it is going to 5 legal advice, it is going to our work product and how we 6 would defend these cases, and so the idea that we would 7 nevertheless log all of that when it does have a 8 presumptive privilege under the law because of the just 9 true nature of what we would be discussing in those 10 emails seems onerous and not where, and courts have 11 decided that because it's a presumptive privilege and it 12 would be onerous, that a categorical log of this sort is 13 sufficient.

14 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, we believe that when 15 someone refuses a document that they typically would 16 click on a single button that indicates attorney/client 17 privilege or work product. But does the defendant have 18 the capability to simply run a report of the metadata
19 fields? The purpose of the privilege and the privilege 20 log process is that it does not in and of itself reveal 21 any of the content, as with the metadata that I'm 22 seeking. Again, particularly when you're talking about 23 a corporate defendant. Defendants are not free to 24 communicate with anyone in the company about any issue 25 and not an expected privilege for any reason, that's not

1 the purpose for this. And again, it is not clear to me 2 that the defendants have even looked at the documents to 3 make a determination whether or not there is a privilege 4 that applies, whether it is specifically about the 5 rendering of legal advice, that is the legal standard 6 for privilege, and that any of the cases that support 7 not having to log them do not stand for the proposition 8 that you don't even have to look. And that's without 9 getting into any of the distinctions from the cases.
10 And if the Court wishes, I'm happy to discuss each case 11 that are cited in the papers.

12 THE COURT: Well, I certainly looked at those 13 cases before the hearing today and they have cited two 14 District of Nebraska cases, Eastern District of New 15 York, Northern District of California, and I found 16 mention in a treatise, the Federal Civil Rules handbook 17 that indicated that frankly parties often agree not to 18 log communications with counsel after the litigation is 19 commenced, and then there was a Third Circuit case in 20 2009, I don't believe defendants cited, the Grider, 21 G-R-I-D-E-R case, which also talks about this notion of 22 a presumptive privilege where we're talking about 23 numerous documents. This presumptive privilege is new 24 to me, but I have read the cases cited by defendants and 25 I would like to hear you briefly tell me why I should

1 disregard those cases.

2 MR. ORENT: Absolutely, your Honor.

3 THE COURT: And again, those cases, those 4 cases were cited in their letter brief and those are 5 cases that I went through, I reviewed before this 6 hearing. You've cited some cases for general principles 7 in a footnote, but you never took on the argument that 8 they're presenting here today, which is this notion of 9 presumptive privilege. And so it makes it somewhat 10 difficult for me as the Court to try to resolve this 11 issue in a way, even though informal, in a way that's 12 consistent with my understanding of the law when I 13 haven't really heard you distinguish the cases they've 14 relied on or give me other cases that would tend to 15 suggest that these cases are outliers. But they do 16 seem, you know, obviously some of them are 17 distinguishable, but it would be helpful to have you 18 tell me why these cases are outliers.

19 MR. ORENT: Absolutely, your Honor, and I 20 would first start by giving your Honor a citation to 21 Baklid-Kunz versus Halifax Hospital Medical Center, 2012
22 U.S. District Lexis 158944, November 6, 2012 decision
23 out of Middle District of Florida.

24 THE COURT: And that's 2012 Lexis. What's the 25 volume number, 2012 15 --

1 MR. ORENT: 1589 -- 158944.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. ORENT: So first of all, your Honor, I 4 think that there's -- and that stands for the 5 proposition -- and that court declines to extend such an 6 agreement or an allowance.

7 But first I want to start with what I think 8 are two very simple cases. The Prism Techs case is a 9 case actually where, let me just make sure I have the 10 three cases and I'm going to confuse them. Okay, so the 11 Prism Techs case is a case where, this is actually, 12 neither party disputes the general rule or the agreement 13 that they don't need to log. That's a case, and if you 14 look at the last page of that opinion, it actually goes 15 on plaintiff argues that the assumption should be 16 equally applied to its communications with counsel 17 before the litigation began. So really they're arguing 18 they've agreed amongst themselves, the parties have 19 already agreed, so the court's not faced with the same 20 issue about whether it's proper or not to not produce a 21 privilege log. So I think that's an important 22 distinction. It's just the court is only concerning 23 itself as to the breadth of the agreement between the 24 parties. That's the first case.

25 The other two cases actually, the information

1 that's sought directly from law firms, and I think that 2 that's highly significant. The Dell v. DeCosta case is 3 a document subpoena case, so it's not a party. It's a 4 subpoena to a law firm. And so that was decided, both 5 keeping in mind that this was a non-party and that it 6 was a law firm.

7 The other case was actually similarly, the 8 Hulley Enterprises against Baker Botts, that again was, 9 that was a law firm that they were seeking discovery 10 from as well. And again here what we're talking about 11 is not a -- there is no burden. So if the Court is 12 looking to balance, really here the question is whether 13 or not where there is no burden to a party it can simply 14 run a report, whether the presumptive rule, which is 15 Rule 26(b) and the case law interpreting 26(b), whether 16 there's a reason to force an exception to that rule.
17 And here on the one hand there is no burden. In fact 18 we've heard that from Ms. Aytch that the metadata is 19 there, presuming that someone has actually read this and 20 none of these cases stand for the proposition that you 21 can ignore and not conduct a privilege review, they're 22 purely logging, so presuming defendants have actually 23 logged their material, someone has already made the 24 decision. And so the production of the metadata is as 25 simple as running a report. That's not present in any

1 of these cases and I think that that in and of itself 2 would be the sole reason for someone to be relieved of 3 an obligation because of the onerous -- in fact, that's 4 the primary argument that the defendants were relying 5 upon in seeking relief from that, and as I indicated 6 before, we're willing to live with the metadata fields.

7 And then finally with regard to the privilege, 8 these privileges are not, and in fact most of these 9 cases I believe deal with attorney/client communications
10 and not with work product specifically, I could be wrong 11 about that, but my recollection was that these were 12 primarily not work product. What we're talking about 13 here is the defendants have also sought to alleviate 14 work product protections which is not an absolute 15 privilege and there's no reason that simply sending 16 something to an attorney or cc'ing an attorney should 17 create a privilege on an otherwise unprivileged 18 document. We're talking about a tremendously large 19 number of documents, again, to contextualize, this is 20 equal to or greater than the entire production of 21 documents over six years in all of the other litigation 22 in the cases out there. So this is not a small sum of 23 documents. So presumably someone would have had to have 24 looked at these. These include any communication with 25 an outside counsel. And the defendants have not said

1 whether or not that these are just communications 2 directed to or forwarded from.

3 And finally, your Honor, defendants have 4 actually already produced documents that are 5 non-privilege documents from Akerman firm where there's 6 metadata associating it with the Akerman firm, and those 7 documents on their facial view don't appear to be 8 privilege, worthy of some kind of fallback.

9 So, with all of those reasons and the lack of 10 a burden there is really no justification that the 11 defendants can put forward to suggest otherwise, other 12 than they just simply don't want to, there's no reason 13 why someone can't run a report of a metadata and produce 14 that. Nothing in the case law deals with a party not 15 wanting to produce a log simply because given a lack of 16 burden.

17 THE COURT: Attorney Aytch.

18 MS. AYTCH: There are some factual
19 inaccuracies in there I believe, but to the point about 20 this information being presumptively privileged, and I
21 also want to clarify that the defendants are not 22 contending that they would not do a privilege log.
23 There would still be a privilege log, as you noted, of 24 anything privileged that was prior to the litigation of 25 anything that there's a third party on, on any

1 communication between the client and counsel not dealing 2 with this litigation. We're particularly talking about 3 the case law, and as your Honor had mentioned, generally 4 the agreement between the parties that this subcategory 5 of documents would not be logged because it is 6 presumptively privileged. With Akerman and its local 7 counsel would be talking to Atrium and the other 8 defendants about with regard to defending this 9 litigation is definitely in the nature of an 10 attorney/client privilege. The document that I may be 11 creating and submitting or asking the counsel to give to 12 me definitely was in the nature of work product 13 production.

14 So, I still don't hear where counsel has 15 overcome the presumptive privilege of this just in order
16 to have a log follow these subset of documents. There 17 would still be a privilege log but with regard to his 18 subset of documents, whether it's a presumptive 19 privilege while we are talking to Atrium about the 20 defense of this litigation or not logging the tens of 21 thousands of documents and emails that that will 22 constitute.

23 THE COURT: Anything further, Attorney Orent?

24 MR. ORENT: Well, again, I mean, your Honor, 25 just to sort of rehash.

1 THE COURT: You don't need to rehash. You
2 don't need to rehash. Do you have anything further that 3 you want to respond to? She was fairly brief. Do you 4 have any response?

5 MR. ORENT: Your Honor, I guess that the way
6 Attorney Aytch raises the issue is she is seeking, she 7 is framing this issue as though we are trying to rebut 8 the presumptive privilege, but again, that's not what 9 the issue is here. There's an ordinary requirement to 10 produce a privilege log under Rule 26(b), so we don't 11 have to rebut the privilege to get a log. That's the 12 ordinary standard default rule. It is the defendant 13 that is seeking a request to be relieved of their 14 obligation to produce a log of those communications, a 15 log which they already have the capability of making 16 without burden. And that is the single most important 17 thing. So the test is not whether we've overcome a 18 privilege. The test is simply whether the defendants 19 have justified their decision to not produce a privilege 20 log when they can without significant cost to them.

21 And that, your Honor, is in sum and substance 22 the entirety of this.

23 I would add, your Honor, we would be willing 24 to live with a scenario where their general counsel's 25 communications would not be logged if they were strictly

1 between their general counsel and outside litigation
2 counsel. But where there is unfettered lists of people
3 or third people who the privilege may or may not apply 4 to even if they are corporate hires, we're not willing 5 to live with that.

6 THE COURT: Okay. Anything further, Attorney
7 Aytch?

8 MS. AYTCH: As to that last point, your Honor, 9 I appreciate plaintiffs' offer, but we wouldn't -- we 10 couldn't limit it just to general counsel. In defending 11 this litigation and trying to obtain the information, 12 you know, we have to speak to key personnel in 13 manufacturing, key personnel in R and D, and that's all 14 with the key personnel of the client, so that offer, 15 while appreciated, would not get to what it is the issue 16 that we're litigating here.

17 THE COURT: Okay. All right. So I think I
18 have enough to give you an informal ruling here. Again, 19 to the extent you want to formally litigate this I'll 20 give you to Monday to let us know, Monday at the close 21 of business.

22 The rule, if you just start with the rule, 23 which is a good place to start in my view, Rule 26, and 24 I'm reading the section of the rule, let me get there, 25 (b) (5) (A) says when a party withholds information

1 otherwise discoverable by claiming that the information
2 is privileged or subject to protection as trial 3 preparation material, the party must, and then 4 subsections (i) and (2), lay out the requirement of a 5 privilege log.

6 So the rule uses the language must. I do 7 think there has been an understanding of counsel and 8 agreements of parties in cases where they agree that 9 there will be a presumptive privilege applied for 10 outside counsel communications with a client, and it 11 appears as though there is litigation around that 12 question and courts at least recognize that counsel 13 parties themselves reach agreements to that effect, but 14 the rule itself which frankly would be what I would be 15 relying on here requires that the privilege log be 16 produced.

17 So frankly, Attorney Orent stating the default 18 rule which is, you know, they don't have to rebut some 19 sort of presumptive privilege, obviously the issue of 20 burden and proportionality is a concern in any discovery
21 dispute, but as far as I see it, informally my ruling 22 would be that defendants would need to produce a 23 privilege log with the metadata fields, the Excel
24 spreadsheet sheet type log that Attorney Orent described 25 which would have essentially the type of document email,

1 for instance, the names of people on the communication, 2 the date and perhaps Bates numbers as well, that that 3 seemed, that type of metadata can be produced without 4 significant cost and burden. The metadata appears to be 5 something that could be accessed and then you would 6 simply run the report, and plaintiffs have indicated 7 they will live with the minimum metadata fields I just 8 described, and they make the good point that work 9 product is not an absolute privilege in any event.

10 So, on an informal basis I'm not persuaded to 11 apply the presumptive privilege here and I do think that 12 defendants should produce this log as described by 13 Attorney Orent. It seems as though that contains a 14 reasonable amount of information under these 15 circumstances. So, that's my informal ruling on the 16 privilege log issue.

17 And I think now we've gone through the entire 18 agenda. Am I correct about that or have I missed an 19 item?

20 MR. ORENT: You are correct, your Honor. Just 21 as a housekeeping item, I wanted to add an agreement 22 that the parties had reached relating to the timing of 23 the production of documents that were subject to the 24 defendants' agreement to produce to us related to those 25 requests for production. And it's my understanding that

1 as far as items not previously ordered to be produced 2 but those that were agreed to prior to today, that those 3 would be produced within two weeks, and then that 4 anything that was a result of this hearing would be 5 rolled out shortly thereafter, and I just wanted to 6 memorialize that for the record, and if defendants want 7 to add anything, I'll open it up to them.

8 THE COURT: Okay. Attorney Aytch?

9 MS. AYTCH: We don't have anything to add,
10 your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Okay. All right. I will -- I'm 12 going to think about how we do these, especially when 13 you have legitimate and sometimes I think very 14 significant discovery disputes, it seems to me that 15 counsel should be meeting and conferring after, closer 16 to the time of the status conference and even after 17 you've had an opportunity to look at each others' letter 18 briefs, that's number one. Because it seems to me that 19 you were discovering information that you didn't know, 20 really basic information during this hearing. And then 21 I think the letter briefs themselves could be made more 22 -- could be more helpful to the Court I think if the 23 parties were to meet and confer about those letter 24 briefs and if you were given more time, frankly, to 25 frame the issues and perhaps even just respond to one

1 another's arguments. And believe me, I spent a lot of 2 time preparing and reading what you submit to me. I
3 don't -- I haven't, in preparing for this today, haven't 4 gone much beyond what you've told me in your letter 5 briefs or what you've cited in those briefs. I've 6 certainly read what you've given me. But ultimately 7 that is I think insufficient in many instances to give 8 you an educated response to these disputes.

9 So, I'm going to think about this letter
10 briefing process and see if I can come up with a process 11 that might work better than just simply having you both 12 send at the same time your positions. It seems to me it 13 would be better if you each had an opportunity to review 14 the positions and then you could fashion a response, and 15 then I would see something that would be I think more 16 informative. But I'll think about that. I'd ask 17 counsel to think about that too. And if you could 18 propose a new procedure that you think would give me 19 more information, put the argument in front of me in a 20 way that makes it clear to me what it is, with respect 21 to several of these the scope of the argument wasn't 22 even clear, so I think we could improve upon that 23 process which ultimately is going to help you and help 24 you move this case along, and that's really what I'd 25 like to do, is make these status conferences helpful to

1 the parties so you can continue litigating, you know,
2 continue your discovery and not have to litigate matters
3 and spend money filing lengthy briefs and essentially 4 waiting for the Court to issue a written decision.

5 So, I'm very happy to try to continue helping 6 informally resolve these, but I do think we might want 7 to perfect our process. And if you would give that some 8 thought before our next status conference, I'd be 9 grateful. I will certainly think about it as well. And 10 I know you're going to brief I think at least one issue, 11 and so I will try to get you a decision as quickly as I 12 can on that. And then if you decide to brief any of the 13 other issues that I've informally resolved for you, so 14 be it, we'll set up a briefing schedule very quickly 15 after you let me know.

16 Okay, so I think with that I think we are 17 done. And what I'll do is just get out a very short 18 order that will just summarize what I decided or did not 19 decide today informally or otherwise, and I will allow 20 counsel the opportunity obviously to review the 21 transcript so you can make what I think will be a 22 limited redaction. It will probably just be a couple of 23 pages of the transcript where Attorney Orent and 24 Attorney Aytch describe that merger document.

25 So, I think there's nothing more to cover

1 today. Anything, Attorney Aytch?

2 MS. AYTCH: No, your Honor, thank you.

3 THE COURT: Attorney Orent?

4 MR. ORENT: Nothing further, your Honor, thank 5 you.

6 THE COURT: Okay. Excellent. Well, court is 7 adjourned.
